

CRYPTO CONTINUITY PLAN FOR FIRMS

A will says who inherits the crypto. This says how they reach it.

For estate planning attorneys, financial planners and CPAs. Prepare a continuity plan with every client who holds digital assets: where each holding is, how it is recovered and who to call. It prints as a book their executor can follow, with your firm on every page.

The Continuity Book, from the free demo (a fictional family).

The gap in most estate plans. A client's will can name who inherits their bitcoin. It cannot say where the hardware wallet is, which envelope holds the recovery words, or which exchange to call. Without that, the asset can be lost for good, and the family is easy prey for "recovery" scams.

WHAT THE PLAN DOES

- Maps every holding: wallets, exchange accounts and the devices that open them.
- Draws a recovery map: what is needed to reach each holding, where it is kept and who can get there.
- Plans for six emergencies, from a lost phone to incapacity or death, as numbered steps.
- Prints a Continuity Book for the executor or family, at their level of experience, with a page on what never to do.

WHAT IT NEVER DOES

- Never holds a recovery phrase, private key or password. It refuses them if one is typed.
- Never sends anything. It runs offline in a browser, and each plan is encrypted with the client's own passphrase.
- Never holds client data for your firm or for us. Neither can open a plan without the passphrase.
- Is not a will or a legal document. It sits beside the documents you draft.

THE FIRM LICENCE

- Every client for a year, with no limit on plans.
- Plans outlast the year: they keep opening, saving and printing.
- "Prepared with" your firm on every page of each book.
- Try it first: a free demo, no account needed.

$350

a year · paid in USDC

See every screen in the free demo

The same offline file your firm would use, with a fictional family filled in.

cryptominium.com/continuity/firms

hello@cryptominium.com